ATTACKING TO DRIVE LAST CHINESE FROM SHANGHAI'S ENVIRONS

Six Thousand Appear Trapped by Surrounding Enemy, With Only Avenue of Escape the French Concession, Crowded With Onlookers—Determined to Resist to the Death

SHANGHAI, Nov. 10 (AP).—Japanese shock troops, supported by tanks and batteries of machine guns, opened a spirited attack all along Zuhwei Creek this morning in an attempt to drive the last remaining Chinese forces from Shanghai. Entrenched behind sandbagged barricades in the Nantao native district bordering the French concession, the Chinese, estimated at about 6,000 men, were resolved to resist until death.

As the Japanese went into action against the Chinese who appeared trapped inside a bayonet-pointed crescent, thousands of foreign and Chinese civilians crowded the streets of the French concession for a view of the battle.

While the vanguard of Japanese troops moved into battle, Japanese warplanes roared overhead, bombing clusters of stubborn Chinese defenders wherever they could be spotted.

The Japanese also reported capture of the important city of Shanghai, twenty miles south of the Shanghai-Hangchow railroad, during the night.

It appeared certain the last remnants of Chinese defenders in Shanghai must be annihilated if they made a last stand. There was no avenue of escape except across the Whangpoo River or into the French area, where they would be disarmed and interned.

LITVINOFF GOES HOME SUDDENLY

Departure of Soviet Delegate From Brussels Arouses Much Speculation

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP).—The abrupt departure of Maxim Litvinoff from the Brussels Conference for Moscow was seen tonight as meaning either one of two things:

1. A protest against what Russia considered a Brussels maneuver to leave her out of any Chinese-Japanese mediation conference while leaving Italy in.

2. A preliminary to a Soviet Defence Council on how to meet Italy's adherence to the German-Japanese anti-Comintern pact.

Litvinoff left Vladimir Potemkin, Russian Ambassador to France, in charge of the Soviet delegation, but the fact that Russia still was represented did not lessen the belief his sudden departure was significant.

PROTEST TO ITALY

Russia already has protested to Italy her signature to the pact was "not friendly toward the Soviets."

She also has accused the Fascists of trying to facilitate her in European action on Spanish non-intervention and undoubtedly expects the same tactics from Rome at the Brussels Conference.

The Soviet's future intentions, however, were well veiled. In Moscow the Foreign Office was completely non-committal.

MOTION PICTURE SENT OVER CABLE

New Medium for Television Transmission Put to Interesting Test in New York

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9 (AP).—A motion picture in sound was telephoned from New York City to Philadelphia today over a coaxial cable, a new medium for television transmission.

The scene and spoken words passed from the Bell Telephone Company laboratories to a special loud speaker and a glass screen in the company's office here.

They were the first sent over the new cable, which contains conductor units capable of transmitting simultaneously the currents of 240 different telephone transmitters.

The long-distance movie programme included a picture explaining the cable possibilities—television with a minimum of distortion—and also several films of the news reel type.

Nanaimo Building Is Reaching High Figure for Year

NANAIMO, Nov. 9 (AP).—Construction in Nanaimo during the past ten months was practically double that of the same period of last year according to figures released today. Building permits issued during the ten months ending October 31 this year totaled $206,637, compared with $115,143 for the corresponding period of 1936, an increase of $90,514.

CHEST DRIVE TRIUMPHANT

Subscriptions Total $78,924.05—Fund $6,424.25 Over Objective

Victoria's first Community Chest campaign went "over the top" to a magnificent victory yesterday afternoon, and at 7 o'clock last evening the campaign committee proudly announced that they had surpassed their $72,500 objective by $6,424.25 in the final grand total of $78,924.25.

The campaign proper came to an end on Monday night, this being the close of the eight-day period set for the drive by divisions. But the time is being extended a few days for the convenience of certain firms and the few uninitiated or unsolicited subscribers who have shown a wish to come into the chest.

The above amounts, therefore, will certainly be supplemented during the next few days. "A" Division (the special list) is expected still to bring in a few further subscriptions. "B" Division (for business houses) is definitely closed, and the ladies' "C" Division has also finished its work.

"D" Division, into which the majority of employees' subscriptions flow, still has a little "mopping up" to do, as has "E" Division, which has been collecting from the schools, municipal employees, etc.

ORGANIZERS AMAZED

"Even we ourselves are amazed at the results," said Fred M. McGregor, joint campaign chairman with R. H. B. Ker, in speaking last night of the outcome of the campaign. "We have had the most marvelous support from all quarters, and the way the public has received it, as well as the attitude of the workers themselves, indicates very definitely that the mass of people are convinced the Community Chest method is the right method of financing all the welfare organizations represented in the fund."

FIVE KILLED BY ARAB BANDITS

British Police Plane Sent on Hunt for Murderers Of Jews

JERUSALEM, Nov. 9 (CP-Havas).—The Jewish population of the Holy Land was deeply stirred tonight by the murder of five Jewish laborers killed by Arab bandits near the Kiryat-Anavim quarries near here.

Six Arabs were in the attacking party, authorities said. They shot their victims at close range, immediately killing three. Two laborers who survived the first volley were put to death with bayonets.

Jewish merchants in Jerusalem proclaimed a two-hour strike in protest against the latest batch of killings of their compatriots by Arabs.

British police sent out a plane to hunt for the Arabs who escaped shortly after the shooting. The plane picked up the trail of the fugitives and fired on the party, wounding several in a burst of machine-gun fire.

Downs of suspects were questioned today, but police admitted none had yet been connected with the crime wave which has netted criminals more than $3,000 in cash and hundreds of dollars in jewelry and clothing from burgled residences during the past three weeks.

During the three-week period some thirty safes have been robbed. Yesterday Chief Porter said he believed the increased crime list due to "the residue of 2,500 persons who arrived in the city during the past two months."

He added it was difficult to trace the safe robbers and "practically necessary to capture them at work to secure sufficient evidence against them."

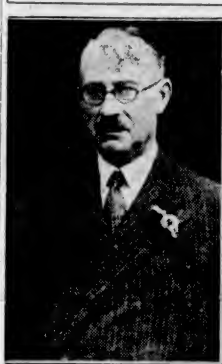

Will Renew Quest For Lost Aviator

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP).—Theodore J. Waldeck, explorer, and Dr. Frederick J. Fox, dermatologist, announced tonight they would leave by plane tomorrow for Georgetown, British Guiana, to renew a ten-year quest for Paul Redfern, American aviator.

Waldeck said his expedition would start on December 10 on a 500-mile journey up the Essequibo River where, it is rumored, Redfern is a prisoner of Indians. He disappeared in 1927 on a nonstop flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Brazil.

Bandits Get Large Booty In Mayfair

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP).—London's fashionable Mayfair district was startled tonight by two robberies that netted jewels valued at $94,000. The Berkeley Square apartment of Mrs. Alexander J. McCormack was robbed of gems valued at $4,000.

Before her marriage to a member of the Chicago McCormack family she was the Comtesse de Fleuriel.

In another raid jewels valued at $90,000 were taken from the Park Lane apartment of Mrs. Hesketh Wright.

Three masked bandits, armed with revolvers, gagged a maid and then, entering Mrs. Wright's bedroom, forced her to surrender keys to her safe.

MOBILIZE FOR POLICE DRIVE

Vancouver Authorities Making Effort to Stem Present Wave of Crime

VANCOUVER, Nov. 9 (AP).—Mobilization of two-thirds of Vancouver's police force was ordered tonight by Chief Constable W. W. Foster. Authorities sought to break a recent wave of safe-cracking, hold-ups and burglaries.

Massing some 200 uniformed officers and detectives, Chief Foster ordered them to comb the city and pick up for questioning every man with a criminal record.

Downs of suspects were questioned today, but police admitted none had yet been connected with the crime wave which has netted criminals more than $3,000 in cash and hundreds of dollars in jewelry and clothing from burgled residences during the past three weeks.

Mackenzie King Writes Provincial Premiers Asking Agreement Necessary to Allow Requisite Legislation—Gives No Details or Indication As to Possible Contributory Conditions

Convinced of Value for Stability of the Dominion

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (AP).—A national system of unemployment insurance to be initiated at the next session of Parliament was proposed in a letter sent by Prime Minister Mackenzie King to Premiers of the nine provinces and made public today.

Agreement of the Provinces on an amendment to the British North America Act would be necessary to empower the Federal Government to enact the necessary legislation, and the letter asked the Provincial Governments to submit their views.

Should the necessary agreement be forthcoming, Mr. King said, the Government proposed to seek the constitutional amendment by the customary joint resolution of both Houses of Parliament addressed to the Parliament at Westminster. He foresaw no difficulty in obtaining the amendment if the provinces were in agreement.

QUEBEC PREMIER STRIKES AT REDS

Orders Provincial Police to Raid And Padlock Offices of Weekly Newspaper

QUEBEC, Nov. 9 (AP).—Flery, too of Communism, Premier Maurice Duplessis invoked today for the first time the law designed to "protect this province against Communist propaganda" by ordering a police raid on the offices of the Montreal weekly newspaper, La Clarite (The Light).

The officers and publisher where the newspaper was published were padlocked by Provincial officers after they carried out files and all available back numbers of the paper, which Montreal Communists said was not an official organ of the party.

"Today's closure," the Premier declared in making the announcement, "is only the beginning of our activities." He made no further reference to the paper or to plans for future action.

Minister Forecasts New Health Era Is Coming in Province

Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir, Replying for Government, Predicts Increased Health and Welfare Services And State Medicine—Main Debate Ends

HON. DR. G. M. WEIR, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Education, made the sole reply for the Government in the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon, when the main debate was concluded. The Minister dealt chiefly with education problems and the question of health insurance.

The Government had been attacked for what it had committed or omitted, Dr. Weir declared, and many of the speakers had been drawing on their imaginations, showing confusion and inconsistency of thought and ideas. The Minister had been strated for appointing commissions, yet in the same breath the setting up of a highways commission had been recommended.

FIELD SERVICE
Turning to questions of the future, the minister said that the increased population of the province had greatly increased the necessity for an efficient field service. For that money would have to be spent, but everyone who knew the conditions spoke highly of the work that was being done.

Referring to the Provincial Secretary's Department, Dr. Weir explained that this was a sort of depository for miscellaneous items of

NEW CURRICULUM

The most significant development in education in the last year had been the new curriculum, which was a milestone in the history of the province, the minister maintained. It aimed to be more practical and to assist in adjusting the pupils to the needs of life. Added emphasis had been given to vocational education.

"He is not a friend of British Columbia who would make political capital out of the health needs of our people," Dr. Weir said, on turning to the question of health insurance. The cost of health services was bound to rise unless greater stress were placed on preventive measures.

PREVENTABLE DISEASES

The total cost of health and welfare services exceeded $3,250,000 a year in British Columbia and by 1947, at the present rate of population increase, the cost of these services would exceed $7,000,000. Critics carped at the cost of retaining the present health insurance commission, but the people of the province paid in one day for health services generally more than was necessary to support the commission for over a year.

"Who can foresee what hospitalization will cost?" Dr. Weir asked. "Our province is really a national one, for it is rapidly becoming a convalescent home for the Prairie Provinces."

STUDY INVOLVED

A great deal of study was involved in connection with this province, he continued, and there was much work for the commission to do. The question of dental services was a problem for consideration. He regretted as much as anyone the delay in starting health insurance, but was not discouraged in the available time since the election it had not been possible to reach agreement regarding changes that might be made in the health bill.

"I think that many members will live to see the time when state medicine in British Columbia will be in operation. There is nothing Communistic about it. I believe it is 100 per cent," the minister stated.

CHANGED PERSPECTIVE

"The hour for a new era in the history of the province is striking today," Dr. Weir concluded. "During the last eight or ten years the perspective of the people in health matters has changed. There will be more health and welfare services, more economically operated, for the underprivileged and our forgotten citizens."

Declaring that the roads of the province were in very bad condition, McGregor F. Macintosh (Conservative, The Islands) said the Prime Minister had not given any reason why he had not implemented his promise to set up a highways commission. Regarding grants to municipalities, he stated that it did not matter who had taken them away; the present issue was why this Government did not give them back.

OPPORTUNITY FOR YOUTH

Concerning the need for conservation of forests and suggested that the replanting of denuded areas and the need for employment for young men should be brought together. Speaking of the youth movement, he said that the opportunity for youth in the governing of the country was there today if youth wished to grasp it.

Captain Sidney Leary (Liberal, Kaslo-Slocan) dealt with mining development and stressed the value of opening up the Duncan River Valley area. He concluded the debate with reference to the difficulties experienced with the Doukhobors in the Kootenay country and urged that they should be debarred from acquiring Government timber sales, forced to comply with the Marketing Act and wage laws and taxed to build their own schools and pay teachers' salaries.

BUDGET MOTIONS

Mr. Speaker Whitaker put the motion that His Honor be thanked; it carried, and the ten-day debate was over. Preliminary budget motions were passed, clearing the way for the budget today. After the introduction of minor bills and routine business, the House adjourned at 5:35 p.m. until 2:30 today.

At the opening of the sitting, R. L. Maitland, K.C. (Conservative, Point Grey), stated he wished to correct the impression that the Department of Education had expended $528,000 more than appropriations in one year. Mr. Maitland said that he had not intended to convey anything of this kind, but was referring generally to increase in departmental votes shown.

that the Government shared "the opinion that a national employment service within Federal jurisdiction is a necessary complement of any plan of national employment insurance."

Following is a copy of the letter addressed to the Premiers on November 5:

"My dear Premier:
"My colleagues and I are convinced that a national system of unemployment insurance would contribute materially to individual security and industrial stability throughout Canada and would assist in mitigating the distress incident to any recurrence of widespread unemployment."

NECESSARY COMPLEMENT

"A strong recommendation with respect to national control of employment offices, based upon a full investigation of the unemployment situation throughout the Dominion, has been submitted to the Government by the National Employment Commission. We share the opinion that a national employment service within Federal jurisdiction is a necessary complement of any plan of national unemployment insurance."

"We believe it is most desirable that legislation establishing a national system of unemployment insurance and of public employment offices should be enacted. It is possible to obtain the co-operation of the Governments of the several provinces toward this end, we are prepared, at the next session of Parliament, to introduce the necessary measures."

A NEGATIVE OPINION

"You will recall that on January 28 of this year, the judicial committee of the Privy Council gave a negative opinion upon a reference as to whether the Parliament of Canada had jurisdiction to enact the Employment Insurance and Social Insurance Act, 1936. Close attention has since been given by officials of the Dominion Government to the resulting situation. We have also had the benefit of the counsel and advice of a member of the staff of the International Labor Office, who is familiar with existing systems of unemployment insurance and who has been placed at the disposal of the Government for purposes of consultation by the International Labor Office."

NECESSARY PRELIMINARY

"It appears to be the general consensus of view that unemployment insurance, if it is to be effectively carried out, should be national in scope. In view, however, of the limited jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada, an amendment to the constitution would seem to be a necessary preliminary to the establishment of a national system."

"In these circumstances I am writing to the Premiers of the several provinces to inquire whether their Governments would be agreeable to an amendment being made to the British North America Act empowering the Federal Parliament to enact unemployment insurance legislation. I should be obliged if, at your early convenience, you would kindly advise me of the views of the Government of (name-of province)."

He praised a speech at Brussels by Norman H. Davis, head of the United States delegation to the conference, in which Mr. Davis assured other powers of United States participation in efforts toward peace.

Occasion for the speech was the inauguration of Sir Harry Twyford as the 61st Lord Mayor of London. Earlier in the day Sir Harry drove in state to the Law Courts to take his oath of office. The "Lord Mayor's Show," as the ceremonial procession is known, attracted millions of spectators.

Four Young Men Charged With Breaking and Entering Garage Premises

Following the discovery of a suspicious cache on Monday in the vicinity of Cowichan by Chief Allan Rankin and Sgt. P. K. Cummings, there appeared in a special sitting of the Saanich police court yesterday morning four young men who were formally charged with breaking and entering the garage of John Baran at the corner of George Road and Tillicum Road and stealing therefrom articles to the value of less than $25.

The four charged were Graham Smith, aged eighteen; Charles Brown, twenty-two; Ernest Smith, twenty-one, and Frank Dugan, nineteen. They were remanded until next Monday, when they will again appear to answer the charges. Of the four, Graham Smith, the youngest, was present on summons only and did not require bail. Of the party only Ernest Smith, was represented by counsel, W. H. M. Haldane appearing in his behalf.

Mr. Haldane asked for bail for Ernest Smith. He urged that it be not placed too high, but this was met by C. Harold Tait, for the prosecution, who considered bail should be of a substantial character.

Magistrate H. O. Hall announced that he would place the bail at $1,000 for each of them.

Declares Leases of Timber to Japanese Interests Must End

Robert D. Harvey, Addressing Saanich Conservatives, States Federal Government Must Intervene if Province Fails to Correct Situation

"THE sale of British Columbia timber leases to Japanese interests must stop. It is a matter that must be dealt with by the Province, and failing there, Federal authority must intervene," declared Robert D. Harvey, president of the Victoria Conservative Association, in addressing the Saanich association in the Campbell Building last night.

Mr. Harvey was speaking of the broader aspects of national defence in Canada and the need for greater attention to the Pacific Coast. He referred to recent purchases, alleged by Japanese interests, of tracts of timber lands in the Queen Charlotte Islands and around Port McNeill. "It is understood that no Crown lands are involved, but the deals were of a private nature. That does not very much alter the situation and we are not the only body in British Columbia that has gone on record as being opposed to the sales," said Mr. Harvey.

POSITION IN JAPAN

The speaker asked if such a thing would be permitted in Japan, and stated no Occidental was allowed to hold property or rights of that nature in the Japanese Empire. "Why should we not take the same attitude here? Of course, we cannot exclude the Japanese entirely from holding property, but at least, we can see that no lands of tactical importance pass to their control for use in case of war," he stated.

Mr. Harvey referred to the number of Japanese fishermen operating on the coast of British Columbia. "They know every inch of our coastal waters, and I do not suggest they could not be dealt with. But why place them in a position where they could do harm? There is always that danger when we have a world condition such as at present. It is my honest belief we can avoid war, but can we always be sure?" he asked.

Prior to discussing the Japanese question, Mr. Harvey dealt with the administration of the Department of National Defence in the Dominion, under which the department was operating today was a continuation of the policy laid down by the last Conservative Government, but not put into effect immediately because of the depression years. He said it had been stated on several occasions in the House of Commons that the estimates for national defence did not involve any new policy, but the increase was necessary owing to neglect of the department on account of the influences of the depression. Actually, he said, Canada had no greater defence force than it had before the increased estimates and expenditures.

ATLANTIC DEFENCES

Considering the often-repeated phrase, "A Safe Atlantic," Mr. Harvey declared it was generally conceded the east coast did not require the concentration of naval forces in the area of Halifax. "We should forget about defences on the western seaboard; not altogether, perhaps, but in a measure. I do not see the need of half the Canadian Navy, small as it is, being stationed at Halifax. It should be here on the Pacific Coast, where much intensive training could be carried out if we had more ships. My own opinion is that our defence policy at present is inadequate. We must have cruisers and submarines because it would be impossible to mine the Straits in case of war. There would be nothing to stop a hostile squadron coming past Victoria and right into English Bay. Our defence policy is one by which we hope to protect our neutrality, and we haven't that at present," Mr. Harvey claimed.

Mr. Harvey said he held the opinion if there was a war on the Northern Pacific, Canada could not remain neutral and would be forced into hostilities through sheer force of necessity to protect the country's coastline from invasion. He gave comparative cost of defence of other nations, and said: "We have got to do a lot more for the defence of this country, no matter how much we may dislike it."

PLACE FOR YOUNG MEN

With world conditions as they are, he contended, every effort should be made to have young men take an interest in the navy or militia as a duty of citizenship. He stressed the value of training and discipline in character building. He said he believed there should be a merchant service training ship in Victoria to train young men for the merchant marine to enable them to obtain posts at present held by Orientals.

PROTEST LOSS OF RESOURCES

Farmers Urge Government To Protect Timber Tracts And Ore Deposits

Protests against the exploitation of Canada's natural resources by foreign nationals were voiced by the advisory board of the Farmers' Institutes, which met the select standing committee on agriculture in the Legislature in the Parliament Buildings yesterday morning.

Concerning the reported sale of timber tracts and deposits of ore to the Japanese for export to Japan, the board brought forward a resolution protesting against the sale of natural resources or grants, for exploitation and the export of the raw products to foreign countries, supporting the view that Canada's raw materials should be reserved for manufacture in the Dominion by Canadians.

FEAR REVENUE LOSS

B. E. MacKenzie, New Westminster member of the board, said that the reported sale of timber tracts to the Japanese had made some farmers feel that there might be considerable loss of revenue to the Government. The intention of the resolution was that the Government should impose an export tax or meet the situation in some other way, so that revenue could be gained from the Japanese who were taking timber out of the country and thereby depleting the natural resources of British Columbia.

The natural resources of the province were rapidly being alienated, G. H. Heigson, Metchem, contended.

The board also submitted a resolution regarding the encroachment of the Legislature in general, requesting the Minister of Agriculture to take the whole question into consideration, and in co-operation with the Dominion Government, authorize a survey to be conducted "with a view to combatting the menace."

WAR VESSELS UNDERMANNED

Full Complements for Fleet Recommended by Chief of Navigation Bureau

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP).—Rear-Admiral Adolphus Andrews, chief of the United States Navy's Bureau of Navigation, recommended today in his annual report the fleet be manned at full war strength. The 102,500 sailors authorized by Congress for the current year, he said, permits crews averaging only 86.1 per cent of full complements. "This percentage, although enabling the fleet to 'carry on,' is not sufficient to maintain it at its full efficiency and does not provide sufficient men to be trained for vessels to be commissioned upon mobilization," Admiral Andrews said.

Scottish Songs Give Fascinating Subject For Entertainment

Victoria Burns Club Sponsors Programme of Illustrated Poems by Scotland's Bard—Life Membership Presented to Mrs. G. D. Christie

SCOTTISH folk of Victoria and their friends, last evening, again showed a deep-rooted sentiment for Scottish poetry, history and tradition by filling the Chamber of Commerce auditorium to its capacity on the occasion of the fine presentation, under Burns Club auspices, of a programme of Scottish songs illustrated by living pictures.

Devised, directed, and personally supervised by Mrs. G. D. Christie, the entertainment was so successful that it is to be repeated on November 24 in aid of the I.O.B.E., and plans were already under discussion last night for a special performance for the young people of the city who were unable to attend mid-week performances owing to their school studies.

An unrehearsed incident that gave great satisfaction to the audience was the presentation of a Life Membership in the Burns Club to Mrs. Christie, in acknowledgement of the splendid work she had done on this and previous occasions for the organization. President W. B. Grant presented the framed memorial on behalf of the members, amidst applause, following a speech of thanks by the honorary vice-president, W. A. Jameson.

BEAUTIFUL PICTURES

In a general way the entertainment followed the pattern of those given once or twice previously for the club, with the exception that Burns poems were the theme of the pictures and musical numbers, instead of incidents from Scottish history. Each picture had its accompanying musical background, the tableau being posed while the song was sung. In arranging the details of dress, the make-up of the characters, and the scenic background, historical accuracy, good taste, and a fine sense of atmosphere were observed.

The costumes were beautiful as well as authentic, and the types chosen for the portrayal of the various characters were most happily chosen. In fact, great expenditure of time was evident in the preparation of the whole programme, not only on the part of Mrs. Christie, and those associated with her in the organization and directing, but on the part of those taking the parts in the tableaux. All these, together with Miss Jessie Smith, who acted as accompanist, and the singers, were included in the cordial thanks extended.

Among those in the audience were Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Adair, of Pasadena, California, who had prolonged their visit in the city especially in order to see the performance.

EIGHTEEN SONGS

The audience participated to the extent of joining in some of the choruses of the more familiar numbers, under W. C. Fyfe's direction. The programme opened with "There Was a Lad Was Born in Kyle." Mr. McMartin, posing the soloist for "I'm Ours Yours to Mary Yet," June Dewar and J. Phillips posed the scene, "Katie Dalrymple" followed, J. Petrie being the soloist, and the pictures be-

Local Speaker Addresses Association On "Give and Take" in Retail Business

At the luncheon meeting of the Credit Granters' Association, held yesterday in Spencer's dining-room, the principal speaker was L. Warner, who chose as his subject "Give and Take." The speaker acknowledged that the subject-matter had been prompted by an article that appeared in The Credit World, but he felt that the application of some of the lessons that were outlined might well be impressed upon members locally.

The lessons learned from teaching prompted the fact that constant repetition was needed to bring home principles. All were in business for what could be legitimately made out of it. The adaptation of the Credit Associations' principles was for the benefits to be derived therefrom.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

They were sometimes lax in failing to remember that if they were to receive they must as members give to the association. Co-operation was required with the association so that reciprocal help should be obtained. Co-operation, in fact, was the life-blood of the association, said the speaker. The bureau should be furnished with all the information that was available.

It was announced that on Tuesday next the speaker would be Rowan W. MacKenzie.

The members were advised of the special meeting to be held on Friday, November 19, when L. F. Crowder, manager of the National Retail Association, who makes his headquarters in St. Louis, will be the speaker.

MR. J. RAMSAY MACDONALD

Few politicians, even in these latter days of rapidly changing outlooks, went through such a metamorphosis of opinion as the late Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald. Certainly none won in the long run such a wide respect from all shades of thought on political matters. His career, indeed, is a story of how a man can rise to eminence from lowly beginnings, and among all those who will be remembered as having taken part in the inception of the British Labor Party no name will stand higher than his, or be recalled so often. It may be that he has not left much of an imprint on British politics, but there was something in the man himself, and especially in the manner in which, when the country was faced with a financial crisis, he came to that country's aid by discarding his radical theories and becoming a member of a National Government, that gave him a place in history which he would not otherwise have won.

The earlier years of Mr. MacDonald's life, when he was a Socialist of the outright type, have now been almost forgotten. As a Socialist, much tempered by time, he became Prime Minister and held that office on three occasions, his first Government being in 1924, the second in 1929 and the third in 1931. It was, however, as a Minister in the National Government under Mr. Baldwin, now Earl Baldwin, that he secured his niche in the hall of political fame. Twenty years before he ever entered Parliament he had been active in preaching Socialist doctrines. It was a change brought about by the whirligig of time that it was he who should have stumped the country opposing the policy of his erstwhile colleagues who desired to bring about "Socialism in Our Time." It was symptomatic, too, of the sterling qualities of Mr. MacDonald that, exasperated as he was during the opening years of the Great War because of his seeming lack of patriotism, and almost a political outcast, he should have won his way into the hearts of the people.

Mr. MacDonald was a noted pacifist. To him must be ascribed the partial disarmament of Great Britain as a gesture in favor of world peace. That set the nation back during a series of years. No other nation would follow suit; instead, the others carried on with their armaments and became stronger, and the voice of Great Britain grew proportionately weakened in the council of nations. Mr. MacDonald, however, was one of the genuine type of pacifists, for with him it was a creed and a horror of bloodshed. For some years past he has been much in the background through waning health. His loyalty to Mr. Baldwin's Government never wavered, although, because of his desertion of the official Labor Party, it might well have been severely tried. Mr. MacDonald is an instance of a man whose mind was broad enough to be guided by the course of events once their lessons had sunk into his understanding. Whatever Socialism he entertained in his latter years was tempered by reality and his appreciation through experience that such a doctrine was repugnant to the majority of the British people. If not as great as some statesmen are rated, he was undoubtedly the common man in an uncommon way and has earned a place in British political history.

THE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE

There has never been any doubt in the minds of those who knew him best that Mr. B. A. McKelvie would prove an undoubted asset in the political life of the country. He was a candidate in the late Provincial election and was only defeated for a seat in the Legislature by a very narrow margin. Now he has been chosen by the Conservatives of this constituency to contest the Federal by-election to be held on November 29 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. S. F. Tolmie. Victoria is traditionally Conservative in Federal affairs, and if it chooses Mr. McKelvie as the next member in the long line of those who have represented the constituency at Ottawa it will make no mistake.

Very few, if any, of British Columbia's inhabitants are better versed in knowledge of the Province, industrially, politically, historically, and in fact in relation to most of the aspects of its life, than is Mr. McKelvie. He has made all that pertains to it his life study, and, as a son and with the wealth of information he has of the resources of the land of his birth, it is small wonder that he should have become so well known through writings and speeches and a fund of knowledge which he has always sought to disseminate for the benefit of his fellow citizens. One of the handicaps in political life is often enough the securing of public office by those who have one-track minds, whose information lies along some particular bent or some occupation in which the Member has been engaged in his everyday career. It may be that he is a business man and knows little or nothing save in relation to the work in which he is engaged. He may be a professional man who has been immersed in the money-making of his calling, or one who enters politics to advocate the interests of one class alone, rather than the good of the community as a whole. Mr. McKelvie does not belong to any of those types, for his interests are catholic and he has been at pains always, as it is the purpose of a good journalist, to inform himself on all happenings and to tap every possible source of information so as to broaden his understanding of men and events.

With the qualifications he has, Mr. McKelvie should deserve well at the hands of the voters in this constituency if they want representation at Ottawa that will lay paramount emphasis on the needs of Vancouver Island and British Columbia as a whole. The Conservatives have made an excellent choice in their candidate, who has a wider range of knowledge on a greater variety of subjects than, perhaps, anyone who has hitherto entered the political field for Federal honors in Victoria. On the ground of fitness to present the case for Victoria, whatever the issue may be, there is no doubt about Mr. McKelvie's ability. The voters, if they decide to give him their confidence, can rest assured of his active, enthusiastic and exceptionally well-informed presentation of their claims.

JUST SO STORIES

In this country the newspapers are hopelessly prosaic in describing marriage ceremonies. What is at least a highlight in the life of the lady concerned is dismissed with stereotyped language; all marriages are the same—the bride looks lovely, or graceful, or charming, and we let it go at that. Just think of the feminine thrill that would be evoked if the Press as a whole took its cue from The Nebraska Call and used language similar to the following: "The bride is a woman of wonderful fascination and remarkable attractiveness, for with a manner as enchanting as the wand of a siren and a disposition as sweet as the colors of flowers, and a spirit as joyous as the carolling birds, and a mind as brilliant as the glittering tresses that adorn the brow of Winter, and with a heart as pure as the dewdrops trembling in a coronet of violets, she will make the home of her husband a paradise of enchantment, where the Heaven-tuned harp of Hymen shall send forth those sweet strains of felicity that thrill the sense with the ecstatic pulsing of rhythmic rapture."

A FOREGONE CONCLUSION

Russia will have 95,000,000 voters in its forthcoming general election set for December 12, but the candidates for office in the Supreme Council will be restricted. Those who may run for office are candidates for social organizations and societies of toilers, for organizations of the Communist Party, for trade unions, co-operatives, organizations of young people and cultural societies. It would seem as if the candidates are to be confined to those favorable to the Government. It is a free election only to the extent of there being a secret ballot, but none of those voting for will be against the powers that be. This is how Bolshevism protects itself against opposition. The result, which is a foregone conclusion as regards the political stripes of those who will compose the Supreme Council, will undoubtedly be hailed as showing the people's trust in their political and economic leaders.

Mrs. Edith Gostick, a Social Credit member of the Legislature of Alberta, has been discussing the censorship of the Press, and she does not believe that Mr. Aberhart has gone far enough in his legislation. To quote her own words: "I thought it might have been possible to tighten up the libel act, perhaps to prosecute the printers of a paper as well as the writers. Publishing the names of newspaper workers from directors right down to the office boy every few weeks might help." She should have included the printer's devil as well, for he can do the deuce of a lot of mischief.

A radio broadcast of The Vancouver Sun says the Mainland city experienced "a week-end carnival of crime." Vancouver is at least honest with itself, though the city authorities grow strangely restive when anyone from the outside criticizes the notorious crime situation which has so long been a blot on that community.

SPEAKING OF NOISE

The British nation is "beginning to demand and to receive protection against the nuisance of outrageous noises," the president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science told that august body the other day. In Canada, however, the "nation" has yet to show signs of being collectively conscious of the need for demanding similar protection. Noises have been tolerated for years in this country—and in this city—if they were heard in Britain would mean a prompt court case. And the judge would in most cases award a heavy fine for lecture on being a nuisance and let the punishment fit the crime. We have a long way to go yet before we reach the British standard of conduct in the matter of nuisances that disturb law-abiding citizens.—Ottawa Citizen.

"How to Detect Propaganda" is the challenging caption of a booklet issued yesterday by the Institute for Propaganda Analysis, Inc., of the United States. Propaganda, however, is not confined to our courteous and friendly neighbors to the South; it is well-nigh universal. The New York Times set out the nature of the last of seven detected devices like this: "The name-calling device, the glittering generalities device, the transfer device, the testimonial device, the plain-folks device, the card-stacking device, and the band-wagon device."

Propaganda is used, of course, where the action is to be put over, or the attitude is to be changed, or the mind will not stand on its own legs. A valid argument needs no propaganda; it is like an Alger buck, makes its own way in the world. An invalid argument has to be bolstered, and that is one place where propaganda comes in. It is a matter of fact, however, that things in opposition to the argument, and not upon the argument itself, which is nursed along like a weeping calf by the side of its mother. Thus, for instance, if you want to put over health insurance, you talk of position. To the hard-headed medical profession, and many other things. Now, thanks to the Institute, we can identify this as name-calling; as a definite piece of propaganda. Of course, there are those who think that health insurance by itself is a good thing, but this, so far, has not been tried in these parts. We like to do it the hard way, by induction.

The glittering generalities device we have surely met before. It has been said that Germany has no unemployed, that Italy has no unemployed, and that therefore Canada should have no unemployed. You might, possibly, see some difference between the resources of 70,000,000 people in Germany, a thousand years settled, and in Canada with its 11,000,000 people, who have scarcely got here yet, you might say; but you are not invited to look at that—no, you are supposed to keep your eye on Germany. Russia, however, has no unemployed; ever other country has been selected for comparison. Sometimes it is the United Kingdom, with 55,000,000 people and a civilization almost 2,000 years old, that is cited, for the excellence of its social and other conditions. In the light of Sir Philip's latest book, in which Sir Philip says that in a country a little more than a million people, among the tall timber, doesn't it?

Next take the "transfer" device. That starts out with the assumption that the same man, or party, will always give you the same thing. If John Henry Doe has made good in the asbestos brick business, or the sheet metal business, or even with gold fish, he is going to be a sure bet in public business; and you would almost be forced to think so. But, in fact, the transfer device is a special art, or science, or persuasion—yes, that's it! It is a persuasion, wherein the goods you get are bought with your own money by taxation, but seem, nevertheless, to fall clear out of heaven, prepaid. When you get down to it, it is only a limited field in public business for the making of asbestos bricks, sheet metal pipes, or gold-fish bowls; but you are not supposed to get down to it, you are supposed to stay right there and be persuaded. Why, then, is it that a man who was a boy; only in those days they were colored prints to stick on paper, or shirt cuffs, or on the backs of hands.

The testimonial device is entirely self-explanatory. It comes over one of humble station, but in his pocket is a packet of letters from all the crowned and yet-to-be-crowned heads of Europe. How can you refuse such a man! He tells you what Rt. Hon. Thomas Jones wrote the President of the East-West University said in his annual address to the students' council; what the secretary of the Youth Club announced in the club's bulletin last month; and then, it never fails, what "the man in the street" says to him immediately before this very meeting. Oh! There certainly must be a testimonial device. Why, it keeps some people busy for the whole of their lives; and that's outside of commerce and patent medicines.

The plain-folks device is insidious and hard to meet. It is here the speaker says that the time has come to consider the plain man, the plain woman, the plain child; that they have gone all these years without a lick of attention; that his party has, as last discovered it, and proposes to do something about it right away. Who could deny such a plea? Not I! I am for the folks at home, every time, until I discover that I am being "worked."

There remain the card-stacking device and the band-wagon device. The band-wagon device is so obvious that it can scarcely be called propaganda at all, on the theory that the net spread by the fowler in sight of the bird catches no feathers. However, if 500 men have it, the band-wagon device consists in saying that everyone is doing it and that you will be left out in the cold, cold night unless you do it too. The card-stacking device is more subtle and much more deadly, consisting of giving half of the real facts, but only half and those favorable to one side of the case. Thus it can be proved beyond question (1) that "A" is the man; (2) that "B" is the man; or (3) that "C" is the man.

for the job. It works with causes, too.

Now that I have warned you about propaganda, and how to detect it with the help of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis, Inc., of the United States, I trust you will not use this knowledge against myself. A "politician" is always "propagandizing" for something or other, even if it is merely to have you look at the Olympic Range of Mountains across the Straits—and that is worth looking at once a day!

Glancing Over Sport

Do you know that the entire pay roll of the Cincinnati Ball Club at one time was only $9,800? Of course, that was away back in 1889 when the game was just twenty years old. Compare that total with the Yankees' pay roll of today. What a great difference. Heavy rainfall will keep people away from soccer and rugby, but not from watching four top-notch golfers playing an exhibition match, Sunday at the Gorge. Some forty galleries trailed Taylor, Todd, Pryke and Clunk over eighteen holes and were treated to some fine shots by the four of them. Pryke, playing with a pair of shoes without spikes, did an adagio dance for the spectators on the eighth tee. He slipped and started his down-swing, and after going through every movement a golfer shouldn't, he still hit the ball off the tee. . . . Don't forget you ex-servicemen to file your entry today for the annual Remembrance Day golf tournament at the Uplands course on Thursday. If you get "bombed" off one of the tees during your round, don't get mad, for it will only be one of those large firecrackers being tossed at you from a dugout. . . . An all-star international football team from the English league is going to tour Canada and the United States next year, and according to reports, they will play in Vancouver and not Victoria. The Island should be considered, so Mr. Robertson get working on this matter before it's too late. —J.D.

UPHOLDING DEMOCRACY

Slr.—In regard to the condition in many countries at this moment, I am very glad to hear that those three little nations, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, are trying their very best to uphold the democracy against Fascism and Bolshevism. I also appreciate that those three nations keep their hands off the Spanish civil war. Great Britain, the United States, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland are all going along well. I surely do appreciate it. HAROLD HESKIN, 617 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C., November 8, 1937.

Telegraph Line to Alaska—It is rumored that the Canadian Pacific Railway will connect the building of a line of telegraph between the Province and Alaska to connect with their present system. It is said that this line will be the Cariboo road. It will form a portion of the system, and that the extension to Alaska will be carried on from that point. In view of the rapid development of the territory of Alaska, and the constantly increasing traffic to "The Land of the Midnight Sun," it is thought that a line to that point would, though the greater portion of it would be unproductive. Still, with the traffic that will be carried, it will probably prove a financial success. At the present time the territory is only worth the cost of the line in the form of the line in these energetic days. It is probable that work will begin in the Spring.

AMENDMENTS ARE APPROVED

House Committee Receives Delegates From Union of B.C. Municipalities

The municipal committee of the Legislature yesterday morning received delegates from the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, and passed for presentation to the House several amendments to the Municipal Act approved at the convention of the union in Nanaimo in September.

Among the amendments passed were those dealing with public exhibitions and shows, the right of municipalities to collect taxes from beer parlors; prevention of damage in public parks; the right of municipalities or cities to collect library fees from persons not the owners of land, and ruling that private roads be properly connected with existing highways.

The committee did not endorse an amendment asking that municipalities be given the right to buy and sell gas, oil and lubricating oils as well as fuel oil.

A request that municipal elections should be held in December instead of January was approved.

Salvation Army Officers Greet Canadian Chief and Commissioner Lamb

Greeted by ranking officers of the Salvation Army, Commissioner George L. Carpenter, commander for Canada, Mrs. Carpenter, and Commissioner David C. Lamb, L.D., C.M.G., London, England, arrived in Victoria yesterday afternoon, from Vancouver.

Commissioner Carpenter, brisk, friendly and courteous, stopped to chat briefly outside the C.P.S. waiting room before he commenced a round of engagements that will keep him busy during the two-day stay here. He succeeded to the Canadian command last June, was previously in charge of South American work, and prior to that time spent several years in London where, with his wife, he did a considerable amount of writing and editorial work for Army publications. He is an Australian by birth.

ORGANIZATION INCREASES. He explained that the organization has spread through ninety-two countries, and that it had established itself in the Philippines and Egypt in the past year. His policy in Canada will be to develop and to strengthen the old evangelism. "Save a man morally," he contends, "and you can then have a real influence on his physical and mental well-being."

Commissioner Carpenter admitted that the Sino-Japanese conflict had disrupted, to some extent, the work of the Army in the Orient; but declared that both Japanese and Chinese Salvationists were caring for their wounded in hospitals and Red Cross stations.

White-bearded, incisive Commissioner Lamb is in the West to make a social survey, and to investigate the possibilities of emigration. "We want to hear the views of those who are in favor of it. And on the other hand, we also want to hear from those opposed to it," he declared at the Empress Hotel, yesterday.

GREATER SECURITY HERE. He candidly admitted that there was no great tendency on the part of the people of the British Isles to emigrate. "You may depend upon it they must be warmly invited before they will come here," he said.

"Social service in the Old Land anchors people to their home. But on the other hand, it must be realized that in this Dominion there is greater security."

CITY OCCUPIED. Japanese communiques from North China reported the fall of another city, Taiyuanfu, capital of Shanai Province. The communiques said Japanese troops occupied the city, the fourth North China provincial capital to be occupied in the four months of the Northern campaign, after twenty-four hours of bitter street fighting from which not one Chinese soldier escaped alive.

Japanese troops pressing in pursuit of the Chinese retreating from Shanghai rounded the corner of the French concession and passed the Sicaev Cathedral along Sicaev Creek, the dividing line between Nantao and the French area in Western Shanghai.

The Chinese had dynamited and burned all bridges across the Zhabei Creek in the path of the Japanese and had barricaded the far side.

RAMSAY McDONALD PASSES SUDDENLY

He had been in indifferent health in recent years, and just a year ago tonight he collapsed while attending the Lord Mayor's banquet in the Guildhall, a function held again tonight, shortly before news of his death was received.

The former Prime Minister was accompanied on the South American cruise by his daughter, Sheila.

FIRST LABOR PREMIER. Mr. MacDonald became the United Kingdom's first Labor Prime Minister in January, 1924, his Government lasting until November of that year.

He again became Labor Prime Minister in 1929. In 1931, at a time of great economic stress, he formed the first National Government, which he headed until 1935.

News of his death was received as a great shock in England after midnight.

MacDonald was beginning a three-month vacation, which he had described as the first he had ever had free from care.

Dr. MacKinnon made the following announcement: "The message said he peacefully passed away at 8:45 p.m. We assume that it was a heart attack."

"He had not been well for some time. The message was addressed to my wife from her sister, Miss Sheila."

MacKinnon's wife was formerly Miss Joan MacDonald, the former Prime Minister's second daughter.

SON AT BRUSSELS. His son, Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary for the Dominions in the Cabinet of Prime Minister Chamberlain, now is in Brussels attending the nine-power conference on the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

His third daughter, Miss Isabel MacDonald, is engaged in managing a rural inn.

The message said MacDonald's body would be embalmed and sent to Bermuda, where the vessel is due on November 15.

caused when they declined to follow him into the National Government and accused him of betraying labor. He fought to power with his party from practical obscurity in the pre-war years. He bitterly opposed the war and resigned leadership of the Labor party in the House of Commons to the late Arthur Henderson when the group decided to support it.

BORN IN SCOTLAND

Mr. MacDonald was born on October 12, 1866, in a two-room, thatched-roof house in the little Scottish fishing village of Lossiemouth. At the age of twelve he had to quit school to earn his living in the fields.

As an adolescent his first job was as a warehouse laborer at twelve shillings a week. At lunch time he read in free libraries and at night delved into borrowed books, later taking correspondence courses and sometimes attending lectures in Birbeck College.

He made his first race for Parliament in 1895 in Southampton, but received only 897 votes. His second stand was in 1900 after his active opposition to the South African War. He was beaten badly again.

MADE PARTY LEADER. In 1911 he was made leader of the two score men who made up the Labor party in the House of Commons and became chairman of the Independent Labor party, the more advanced Socialists.

Within a few months death deprived him of his son David, his mother and his wife, and he was left with the care of two sons and three daughters.

His anti-war stand resulted in his losing the House of Commons seat in the election following the Armistice. He tried to get back into Parliament in a by-election, but was beaten again. In 1922 he was returned by Aberavon in the election that followed the crash of the Lloyd George Coalition Government.

Then election Labor sent 142 members to the House and they became the official Opposition. Mr. MacDonald was elected their leader and spokesman.

In 1924 his first Labor Government, formed with Liberal support, drew his support after an alleged letter was published by Gregory Zinovieff, Russian foreign commissar, advocating forming Communist factions in British military forces.

In the subsequent election Labor was defeated and Conservatives returned with a great majority in the House.

FORMS SECOND CABINET. The next election was in May, 1929, with Labor emerging the largest party, lacking but sixteen seats of full majority. The second Labor Cabinet was formed.

Then came a period of tremendous activity and responsibility for the Prime Minister.

His first big concern was with naval armaments. He went to Washington, where he and President Hoover laid the foundations for the 1930 Naval Conference.

He restored diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia and withdrew British troops from the Rhineland. He presided at the London Naval Conference and the first round table conference on India.

Then came a time when he became serious with unemployment and the cost of relief increasing at an enormous rate. The Government was under constant attack. The National Government was formed of Conservatives, some Liberals and a few of Mr. MacDonald's Labor associates.

SPLIT AMONG FOLLOWERS. Philip Snowden, his Finance Minister and J. H. Thomas accompanied Mr. MacDonald into the National Government, but Arthur Henderson and many others refused.

Subsequently Mr. Snowden, who died this year as Viscount Snowden, withdrew from the Government and became one of Mr. MacDonald's severest critics.

Mr. MacDonald carried on as head of the National Government until 1935, when he gave way to Mr. Baldwin, taking the office himself of Lord President of the Council.

After the Coronation this year, when Mr. Baldwin received an earldom and went to the House of Lords, it was revealed that Mr. MacDonald declined a similar honor.

In 1935, during his first campaign Mr. MacDonald received a campaign contribution from "M. E. Gladstone."

He discovered this was Margaret Ethel Gladstone, daughter of the late scientist, Dr. J. H. Gladstone. They were married the same year. She died in 1911.

On their honeymoon they toured Canada, Australia, India and South Africa. She brought her husband financial independence at a time when he was a struggling journalist and already known as a powerful speaker.

Mr. MacDonald visited Canada on several occasions. Last year he gave a host of pleasant impressions on that Dominion in his book of essays "At Home and Abroad."

"This is indeed an oasis of Scotland," he wrote of Nova Scotia. "The people I met there were ready to discuss theology by the hour, as the church apes attest. The old religion was taken life by Highland families of Jacobite days. Its hold is still firm. Its authority is like a post-war dictatorship."

CHAIRMAN FOR CONFERENCE. Mr. MacDonald's last important public activity was the chairmanship for the World Sugar Conference last Spring.

He suffered a severe disappointment in the Fall of 1935 when Sir James Macdonald refused to re-elect him to the House of Commons, returning instead a member of the Labor party that in the meantime had rebuilt itself from the disaster that followed severance when some of its members entered the National Government.

Congratulate Members. Frank Paulding and Fred M. McGregor, members of the Kiwanis Club, were congratulated at yesterday's luncheon on the success of the Community Chest in collecting the sum of $75,000. The original objective of the club was $72,000.

Forecast Speed Limit. Legislation may be introduced in the British Columbia Legislature to set a speed limit of thirty miles an hour throughout the province. It was indicated yesterday in legislative circles. No official comment was offered.

Man Injured. Mrs. J. J. Mahoney, 550 Simcoe Street, informed police yesterday that her husband, John Mahoney, slipped and fell on a Government Street sidewalk, near Marfield Avenue, at 8:30 o'clock, Monday night. He broke his nose and teeth, and was attended by Dr. A. C. Sinclair.

Clothing Needed. The welfare department of the relief office is in urgent need of men's warm overcoats, underwear and socks for families in destitute circumstances. A single bed mattress is also required for an invalid. Those able to donate clothing are asked to telephone G 8104.

Held Long Sitting. Many motorists were before the city police magistrate yesterday charged with infractions of various kinds of the traffic by-laws. When the court rose shortly before 12 o'clock there had been 4250 contested in light fines, most of them being for failure to stop at stop signs.

"Tin Can Mail." A letter delivered by "Tin Can" mail from Niua-Fu Island in the South Pacific, has been received by Mrs. C. H. Chaston, 933 Falkland Road. The service is so known because letters from passing steamers are thrown overboard in a walled kerosene can, and were once retrieved by native swimmers. Sharks made the practice dangerous, and the can is now retrieved by canoe.

Always Tired, Grouchy, Nervous!
Chronic Constipation Made Life Miserable—Is Happy Now

It's never constipation drags you down, try the fruit juice, herbs, tonic remedy, nothing like it. Mrs. L. L. Mansfield writes, "I feel nervous, irritable and tired all the time. Couldn't eat. Didn't sleep. Worked with difficulty due to chronic constipation. I put me right until I tried Fruit-A-Tives. Soon I became regular, headaches and irritation left me. I have lots of energy now." It's worth while to try this same simple way to regain health. You'll be glad you did. 25c and 50c.

MEETINGS CANCELED. Owing to the Federal by-election campaign activities, November meetings of Ward 4 Liberals have been canceled.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP).—Secretary Swanson named Admiral Claude C. Bloch Commander-in-Chief of the United States Fleet to-night.

Drive Impeded by Counter-Thrusts. HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Nov. 9 (AP)—Insurgent officers reported tonight sharp counter-thrusts by Government forces were impeding the drive of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops in Northern Spain.

They said the dogged Government defenders were holding a number of "important points" which must be "cleaned up" before the start of any decisive insurgent drive against Catalonia.

"Why, put your foot down on it at once," replied the latter, "and put it down good and hard."

"But what had I better put it down on?" said Jinks, doubtfully, "the brake or the accelerator?"

The fancywork stall, decorated in a color scheme of orange and white, was in charge of Miss K. Mackay, Mrs. W. W. Baines, Mrs. Sabin and Mrs. Vernon Thomson. The home-cooking stall, at which Mrs. Walter Fraser, Mrs. P. C. Criddle, Mrs. H. S. Henderson and Mrs. Fagan presided, was another popular attraction. Contests were in charge of Miss Elena Jones and Mrs. W. McManua.

Mrs. Llewellyn Jones was the tea convener and Mrs. Kent had charge of the tickets. The tea table was attractively arranged with a cleverly designed centerpiece, the work of Mrs. Charles E. Wilson, groupings of white pillars from two bases at each end of the table, being surrounded by white porcelain bowls of scabiosa and pink carnations, the pillars being garlanded with smilax. Vari-colored papers added to the charming effect.

During the afternoon Mrs. P. M. Bryant, Mrs. H. E. Ridewood, Mrs. Mooney and Mrs. C. E. Wilson poured tea. Assisting with the tea arrangements was Mrs. Alex McDonald, and student nurses of the hospital assisted in serving.

Ganges Chapter
The Ganges chapter was held recently at Ganges House. In the absence of the regent, Mrs. Desmond Crofton, the chair was taken by the vice-regent, Mrs. C. E. Baker. A unanimous vote of sympathy was passed to the educational secretary, Mrs. H. Moorhouse, in her illness. The secretary was instructed to write a letter expressing the thanks of the chapter to Mrs. Charlesworth.

NOT FAIR
When a log-cutting competition started at the local show, half a dozen men mounted the platform and began cutting at twelve-inch logs for dear life.

One strapping fellow, however, who had been practicing for the event, slowly removed his coat, rolled up his sleeves, and sat down to watch for a few moments. When the logs of the others were half cut, he sprang up and seized his axe, and raining a few expert blows at his logs, easily finished first, but an Irishman in the crowd refused to accept him as champion.

"It isn't fair," he roared, "all the other men were tired before he started!"

Chatterer Is Sure That This Is His Last Day

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Farmer Brown's Boy Picked Up the Wire Trap and Started for the House.

There was no hope, not the faintest ray of hope in the heart of Chatterer the Red Squirrel, as Farmer Brown's Boy picked up the wire rat-trap in which Chatterer was a prisoner and started for the house. Black Pussy, the cat, following at his heels and looking up at Chatterer with cruel, hungry eyes. Chatterer took a farewell look at the Old Orchard and way beyond in the Green Forest from which he had been driven by fear of Shadow the Weasel. Then the door of the farmhouse closed and shut it all out. If there had been any hope in Chatterer's heart the closing of that door would have shut the last bit out. But there wasn't any hope. Chatterer was sure that he was to be given to Black Pussy for her breakfast.

Farmer Brown's Boy put the trap down on a table. "What have you there?" called a great voice. It was the voice of Farmer Brown himself, who was eating his breakfast.

"I've got that thief who has been stealing our corn in the crib," replied Farmer Brown's Boy, "and who do you think it is?"

"One of those pesky rats," replied Farmer Brown. "I'm afraid you've been careless and left the door open some time and that is how the rats have got in there."

"But it isn't a rat and I don't believe that there is a rat there," replied Farmer Brown's Boy in triumph. "It's that little red scamp of a squirrel we've seen racing along the wall on the edge of the Old Orchard lately. I can't imagine how he got in there, but there he was and now here he is!"

"What are you going to do with him?" asked Farmer Brown, coming over to look at Chatterer. "I don't know," replied Farmer Brown's Boy, "unless I give him to Black Pussy for her breakfast. She has been teasing for him ever since I found him!"

Farmer Brown's boy looked over to the other side of the table as he said this and his eyes twinkled with mischief. "Oh, you mustn't do that. That would be cruel!" cried a soft voice. "You must take him down to the Green Forest and let him go!"

A gentle face with pitying eyes was bent above the trap. "Just see how frightened the poor little thing is. You must take him right down to the Green Forest right after breakfast!"

"Isn't that just like Mother?" cried Farmer Brown's Boy. "I believe it would be just the same with the ugliest old rat that ever lived. She would try to think of some excuse for letting it go!"

"God made all the little people who wear fur and they must have some place in His great plan," said Mrs. Brown. Farmer Brown laughed a hearty laugh. "True enough, Mother," said he. "The trouble is they get out of place. Now this little rascal's place is down in the Green Forest and not up in our corn-crib."

"Then put him back in his right place!" was the prompt reply, and they all laughed.

Now all this time poor Chatterer was thinking that this surely was his last day. You see he knew he had been a thief, and he knew that Farmer Brown's Boy knew it. Its just crouched down in a little ball too miserable to do anything but tremble every time any one came near. He was sure that he had seen for the last time the Green Forest and the Green Meadows and jolly Mr. Sun and all the other beautiful things he loved so, and it seemed as if his heart would burst with despair.

DIRECTORS ARE NAMED BY CLUB

Kiwanians Choose Board at Annual Meeting—Reports Are Presented

A progressive and active year was shown in the reports presented at the annual meeting of the Kiwanis Club in the Empress Hotel yesterday. Seven directors were named to the board as follows: W. H. Dwyer, Dr. J. Ewart Gee, J. J. Hickey, Murray Martindale, Joseph Rose and A. C. Stuckley.

The president, J. G. MacFarlane, vice-president, Austin Curtis, and treasurer, Arthur Dowell, were elected by acclamation at a previous meeting.

Walter M. Walker, retiring president, showed in his report the club had enjoyed a successful year. He said he had enjoyed leading the service group during the past year. The membership of the club had been increased by three, bringing the total to fifty-seven. The attendance at the weekly luncheons showed a 10 per cent gain. The president ascribed this to the splendid programme staged by the committees. All committees functioned satisfactorily, mention being made of the recently reorganized orchestra under William Tickle. About twenty boys were sponsored at the Y.M.C.A., the records of the boys' work committee showed. The school patrol was also a successful venture of the club.

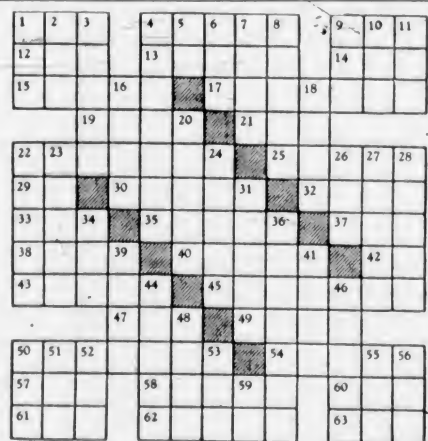

T.B. SEAL CAMPAIGN
The sum of $3,685.50 had been raised by the T.B. seal campaign, while other service work included the organization of the Victoria Kiwanis Club Association for the Rehabilitation of the Tuberculous, to give work to convalescent patients, under the supervision of Dr. F. Kincaid. A Christmas drawing was held to provide cheer for the needy.

Several social evenings were held by the Kiwanians during the year, among them being the installation of officers, ladies' night, a smoker, and the winter bridge tournament. A table at the Y.M.C.A. tea was sponsored by the ladies. The club had also presented a $100 scholarship to a first-year student at Victoria College. Mr. Walker's report stated:

Frank Jordan submitted the treasurer's report, which showed the organization's finances to be in a satisfactory condition, all expenses being kept within the budget. The T.B. seal campaign for this year was under way, Charles W. Pangman stated. A. C. Stuckley reported that on November 20 the club would hold a dinner affair in conjunction with the regular affair held weekly at the Empress Hotel.

The Teacher: "Now, Smith, Minor, pull yourself together. If the donkey's head points to the west where does his tail point?"
Smith, Minor: "Please, miss, to the ground."

JOYS OF SCHOOL
"Well, Annie, do you like going to school?" asked a visitor of a girl who had never been famous for devotion to her books.
"Yes," said Annie hesitatingly, after some consideration. "I really think I like it very well."
"That's good. And why do you like it?"
"Well there are so many pleasant things about it," said Annie, with a smile over remembered joys. "Walking to the school-house in the morning, you know, and talking with the girls at recess, and coming home at noon and night. Oh, yes, I really think I like to go to school!"

Kind gentlemen (to small newspaper boys): "Don't you feel cold, sonny?"
Boy: "Oh no, sir. Selling papers keeps up the circulation."

CHAPTER XXII

"She must have if she looked pathetic."

"Nothing of the sort."

"Well, thank goodness, there's nothing pathetic about me," Syrie said briskly.

Robert sat down astraddle on a chair, his arms on its back. "There was something very pathetic about you the first day we met," he said.

Syrie flushed. "Nonsense! Just because I was out of a job. You'll be saying next that you only engaged me because you were sorry for me."

"I engaged you, as you call it, because I was in the devil of a hole and didn't know what to do for the best."

"Thank you."

"Don't mention it," he said, with a twinkle. "As events have turned out, I was an excellent judge."

She said, with sarcasm, "I hope I am proving entirely satisfactory in every way."

"In some ways," he admitted.

"What does that mean, may I ask?"

"Only that if we go on as we are now, there is a distinct danger of my getting—too fond of you."

"I shouldn't trouble," she said flippantly. "I'm not going to look pathetic when the time comes for—us to part."

"You are jealous," Robert said, calmly.

Syrie raised her head quickly; her cheeks flamed. "Jealous—of the Joan person, do you mean? My poor boy, you must be out of your mind."

"Wouldn't you like me to fall in love with you?" he asked.

Syrie said a little too quickly, "I can't think of anything more unpleasant."

"You mean that if I did you would leave me to die of an unrequited passion?"

"I mean that you're talking a lot of nonsense, and that it's time you went. I want to go to bed."

Robert gave a mock sigh. "Haven't you ever been in love?" he asked.

"Not quite so often as you have, no doubt."

"Will you believe me when I say that I've never been in love—never seriously in love?"

"No."

He laid a hand above his heart in pretended despair. "Betsy has poisoned you against me," he declared.

"I should think she would poison anyone against anything," Syrie retorted. "And if you take my advice, you won't introduce her to the girl you really wish to marry: that would finish it."

"Too late! . . . too late!" he declared.

Syrie laughed. "You are absurd. And do you know that it's nearly eleven? I shall lose my beauty sleep."

Robert sighed and stood up, pushing the chair aside.

"Will you be all right here—without me?"

"I've managed without you all these years," she retorted.

They looked at each other. "What time shall I come in the morning?" he asked. "May I have breakfast with you?"

"It's your flat."

"Nine o'clock then?"

Syrie nodded.

"I went yesterday."

"You're very devoted," she said with faint irony, and he answered that even the most callous of mortals must be devoted to someone. "And as you will have none of me—"

"It seems that I've got a great deal of you," she said unthinkingly. "We spend most of our time together, though probably you'd rather spend it with someone else."

"With Joan Baker, for instance," he said maliciously. "Which reminds me that Betsy got in touch with her, and Joan has called, complete with the correct bunch of flowers, to inquire how the old lady is."

"She would," Syrie said, and then "Did you see her?"

"She was leaving as I arrived."

"Oh . . . and I suppose she stayed on."

"She did—and I drove her home."

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

TAKING TIME FOR A THOROUGH PHYSICAL EXAMINATION

A boxer and his manager consulted a physician as the boxer maintained that he felt tired all the time and the manager stated that the boxer was "too lazy to train."

"I had him over to see Dr. Blank, whom he knows, and he just suggested that I give him a dose of salts and let him stop training for a week."

I did this and he was a little more willing to work but he's getting lazy again.

The physician began to examine the boxer and found his blood was thin and his blood pressure low. An examination of the throat revealed a pair of tonsils and the lining of the throat around them very much inflamed.

"There's your trouble; your boxer has a chronic tonsillitis which is poisoning his blood (making him lazy) and also draining the blood of his system. No wonder his blood pressure is low and that he feels tired all the time."

The boxer was referred to a throat specialist and after a few weeks of treatment he was not only willing but anxious to train.

It is because the busy physician does not get enough time to make a thorough examination during the regular office hour or hours (perhaps two hours at most) that there is not enough time for an examination of the teeth—by light or X-rays, tonsils, blood, urine, blood pressure, eyes, stomach and intestines, and so common conditions are often missed. For instance this boxing manager stated that there were at least a dozen patients waiting at 2:30 p.m. in Dr. Blank's office and his hours were from 2 to 4 p.m.

The point then is that if you can afford it you should make a special appointment with your physician when you feel "out of sorts." Sure as you get out of breath on slight exertion, have chronic indigestion and constipation. By spending a whole half hour or even forty minutes in examining you and giving you a chance to state your symptoms fully, the physician gets a real opportunity of locating your trouble and giving the necessary treatment.

If you take up the time of five ordinary office visits for the one examination, naturally you should expect to pay for it, but you can see that it would not only be more satisfactory for you and the physician, but would really save you time and money.

Be careful that, through lack of proper arrangements, you do not play hide and seek with someone this day. This will be a poor day to keep up any feeling of resentment. Get whatever it might be that irritates you—out of your system by expressing yourself freely, and then forget about it. This day you are likely to find that it pays to advertise your good qualities, so your own horn—but do so tactfully. Be cautious how you joke for there might be a decided lack of humor—existing. You may have occasion this day to do some quick thinking. Be sure that personal likes or dislikes do not sway your judgment. Married and engaged couples and those who are on the verge of becoming betrothed, must act their age this day, because lack of dignity will be a great mistake.

If a woman, and November 10 is your birthday, you may be very studious. Your greatest pleasure is apt to be derived from books. You will succeed best in a business of your own, for you are likely to object to being "bossed." Be very careful how you take up any radical ideas, for it might cause you to lose a substantial financial possibility. Love is a precious possession, so never permit yourself to get into a state of mind that might incline you to turn a cold shoulder to it. You have need to remember that there is such a thing as becoming too intellectual for your own happiness. The chances are you worry too much over trifles, and allow your fear to make you anticipate always the worst. You have many conditions favorable for you.
